

Sea turtles

Like tortoises, turtles are reptiles.

But unlike tortoises, sea turtles live most of their life in the sea, and only come onto land to lay their eggs.

Turtles are cold-blooded reptiles.

Baby turtles have to move quickly unless they want to be an easy meal for crabs and birds.

Time to hatch

During nesting season, female turtles swim ashore at night and dig a hole for their eggs. Then they swim back to sea and leave the eggs behind.

1

A female turtle crawls across the beach to find a safe spot to dig a nest for her eggs.