

Leonardo's time—time for which the prior was paying. However, Leonardo at that point had still not decided how he should paint the faces of Jesus himself and his betrayer, Judas. When the prior hounded him for what may have seemed like one time too many, it is said that Leonardo took his revenge by painting a likeness of the prior onto the face of the traitor, Judas.

While work on The Last Supper progressed, Leonardo continued to follow his other interests. It is likely that Leonardo was on a steady salary, or retainer, while working for Ludovico. Leonardo drew up a new city plan for Milan, incorporating streets and canals to help people move around the city more freely. He also did smaller paintings. For though Leonardo remained in Milan for many years, his mind was constantly on the move.

DID YOU KNOW?

It took many years to restore The Last Supper. The work lasted from 1978 to 1999.

