

now getting more attention in Rome than he was. It must have been unsettling for Leonardo to think of himself being eclipsed by anyone else.

RAPHAEL

Along with Leonardo and Michelangelo, Raffaello Sanzio da Urbino (1483–1520), also known as Raphael, is considered one of the three greatest artists in Italy around 1500. Aside from mastering the more realistic and subtle painting techniques of the period, Raphael also distinguished his work through his bold use of color and natural composition.
