Curly-tailed chameleon

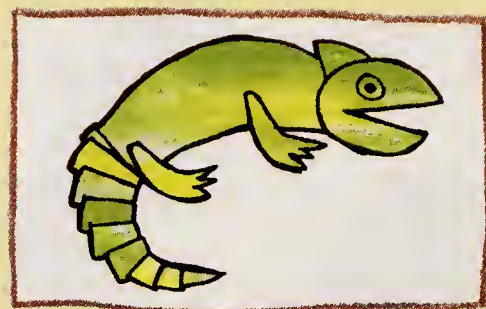

1. Brush yellow and green runny paint onto a kitchen paper towel. Let the paints bleed into each other.

2. When the paint is dry, cut a long shape from the paper towel for the body, and spread glue on one side.

3. Press the body onto another piece of paper, folding it into a curve as you press it down.

4. Cut out shapes from the paper towel for the head and legs, and glue them on. Glue on an eye, too.

5. For a frill, cut a strip of paper. Spread glue along one edge. Press it onto the head, folding it as you press it down.

6. Glue curved paper shapes along the chameleon's body.

Lizard

Use several strips of painted paper towel to make a lizard's body. Give it a thin neck and long narrow tail.
