

Ripped paper crows

187 Standing crow

1. Paint a kitchen paper towel with purple and black paint. Let the paint bleed, then leave it to dry.

2. Rip a shape from the paper for a crow's head. Then, rip the rest of it into thin strips. Rip some strips of newspaper, too.

3. Glue the head onto a piece of paper. Draw eyes, cut them out and glue them on. Cut out a yellow beak from paper and glue it on.

Glue the strips at one end only.

4. Build up the bird's body by gluing on the ripped strips of paper. Then, cut out yellow legs and feet and add them, too.

You could use reinforcing rings for eyes, instead of drawing them.

188 Tweeting

For a singing bird, draw lines coming out of an open beak.

189 Hungry crow

Glue a worm beside a bird's head, then add the beak on top.
