

Newspaper hens and chicks

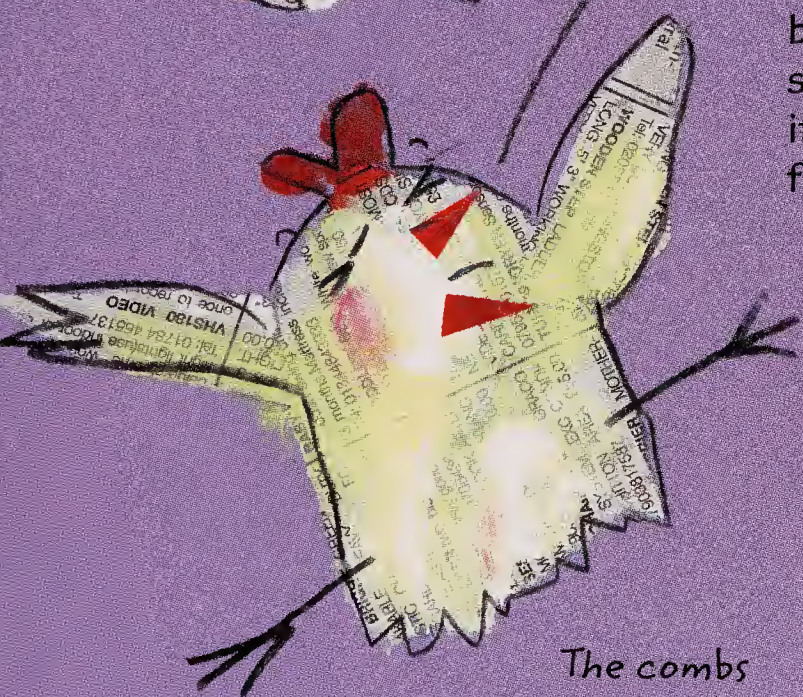

These animals were drawn on newspaper that had been fingerpainted roughly. When the paint was dry, the shapes were cut out, chinks were smudged on top and a black outline was added.

Running chick

Cut out a simple shape for a chick's body, with its wings stretched out. Draw its legs sticking out from the sides.

The combs on top of the heads are painted.

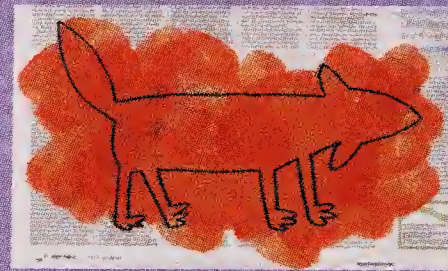

The chicks' beaks are cut from red paper.

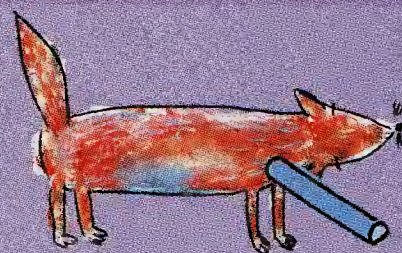

You could draw thin lines to make it look as though the chicks are moving.

Make a fox

1. Fingerpaint some newspaper with orange paint. When it's dry, draw this shape on the paper and cut it out.

2. Draw around it roughly with a black pencil. Then, add chalk lines along its back and tail for fur.

Jumping chick

Cut out a chick with its wings stretched out, then draw legs at the bottom of its body. Add a line to show that it's jumping.
