

Europe

Southern Europe

Southern Europe stretches down to the Mediterranean Sea. It is a dry, hilly land, with hot summers and mild winters.

Did you know?

- Huge flocks of flamingos fly to southern Europe in the summer months.
- There are 36 villages built on the slopes of the active volcano Mount Etna.

Provence

Wild herbs grow in the hills of Provence in southern France.

Alps

The Alps are the longest and highest mountain range in Europe.

Alpine flower

The bird's-eye primrose flowers in early summer.

Meseta Plain

The Meseta Plain lies in the middle of Spain. It is a high, rocky area with very few trees.

The Camargue

This French saltmarsh is famous for its wild horses.

Rock of Gibraltar

This rocky cliff lies at the tip of Spain. It is home to the only monkeys in Europe.

Mount Etna

Mount Etna is an active volcano on the island of Sicily. It last erupted in 1995.

Greek islands

Greece is a hot, dry land with hundreds of small islands in a warm, blue sea.

Olive tree

Olive trees grow on the dry southern hills.

