

Knights

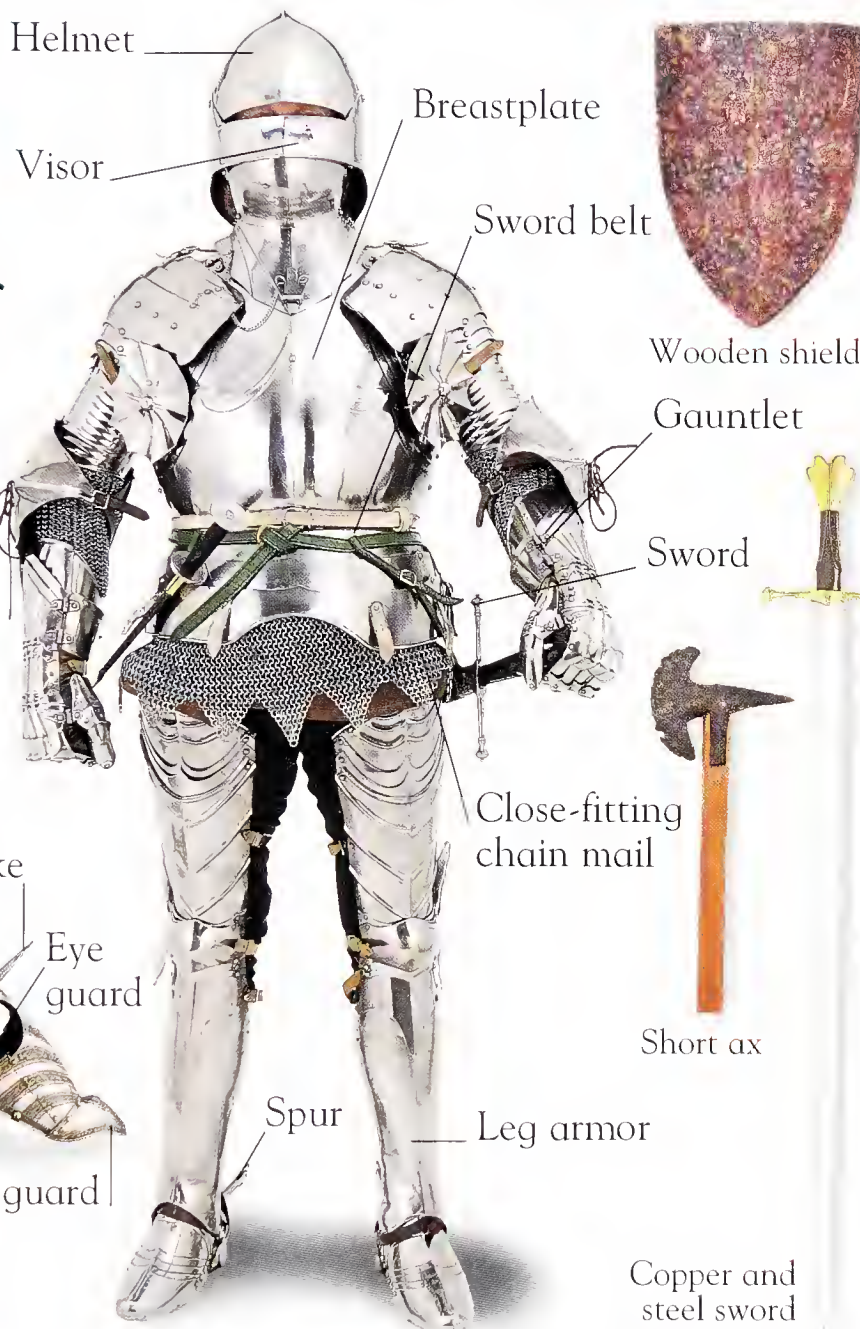

Did you know?

A full suit of armor weighed about as much as a six-year-old child.

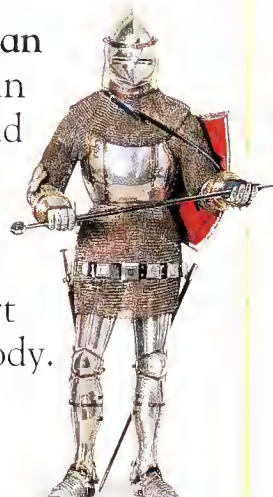

Knights were medieval soldiers in armor who fought on horseback for a lord or a king. They lived about 1,000 years ago.

Types of armor

An Italian knight in 1380 had armor that covered only part of his body.

An English knight in 1590 was totally protected by his armor.

Samurai warriors were Japanese knights. Their metal armor was laced together with silk.

Weapons and armor

In battle, knights used dangerous weapons made of iron and steel. A suit of armor protected them from cuts and blows.

Horse armor

Some knights used armor for their horses, too.

Tournaments

In times of peace, knights took part in jousting tournaments. They charged at each other on horseback, carrying lances.

Helmets

Tournaments were very colorful. Many knights wore unusual helmets.

Italian helmet

Helmet with eagle's beak

