

Vikings

Invading warrior
A Viking warrior attacked villagers on the coast.

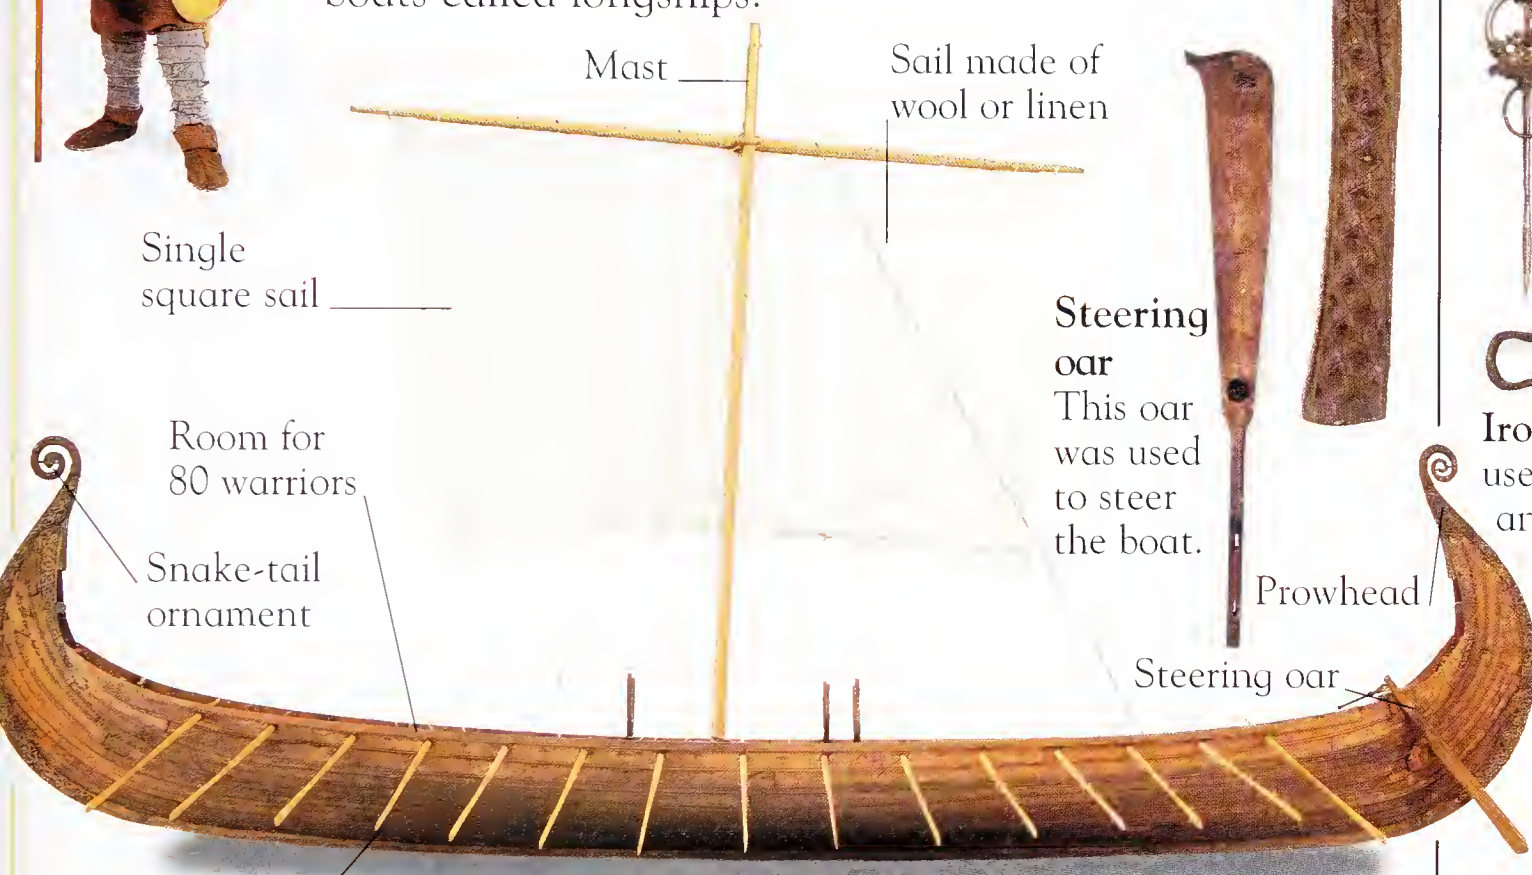

The Vikings from Scandinavia lived more than 1,000 years ago. They sailed all over Europe and America, fighting and trading.

Viking ships

The Vikings sailed great distances in strong, fast boats called longships.

Prowhead

The prowhead was a carving at the front of the ship.

Mast

Sail made of wool or linen

Single square sail

Room for 80 warriors

Snake-tail ornament

Rowing oar

Steering oar

This oar was used to steer the boat.

Prowhead

Steering oar

Metalwork

Bronze items, like this key, were often highly decorated.

Silver jewelry, like this brooch, was worn by wealthy people.

Iron shears were used to cut cloth and shear sheep for their wool.

Weather vanes sat on the masts of ships. They showed the wind direction.

Cooking pots made from iron or soapstone were hung over a fire.

Did you know?
Some Viking warriors prepared for battle by working themselves into a frenzy and going berserk. They were called berserkers!

Trade

The Vikings traveled far and wide, exchanging goods for gold and silver.

German glass cup

Coins

Scales to weigh goods

Weights for scales

