

Asia

Northern Asia

Northern Asia encompasses frozen lands in the north and rolling grasslands and barren deserts in the south.

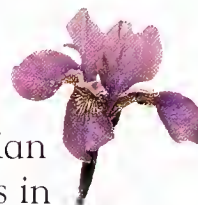

Siberia

In the north of Asia, there is a vast, snow-covered area called Siberia.

Iris

The Siberian iris flowers in the summer months.

Did you know?

- The Caspian Sea is the largest lake in the world. It is four times the size of Portugal.
- Lake Baikal is the oldest and deepest lake on Earth.

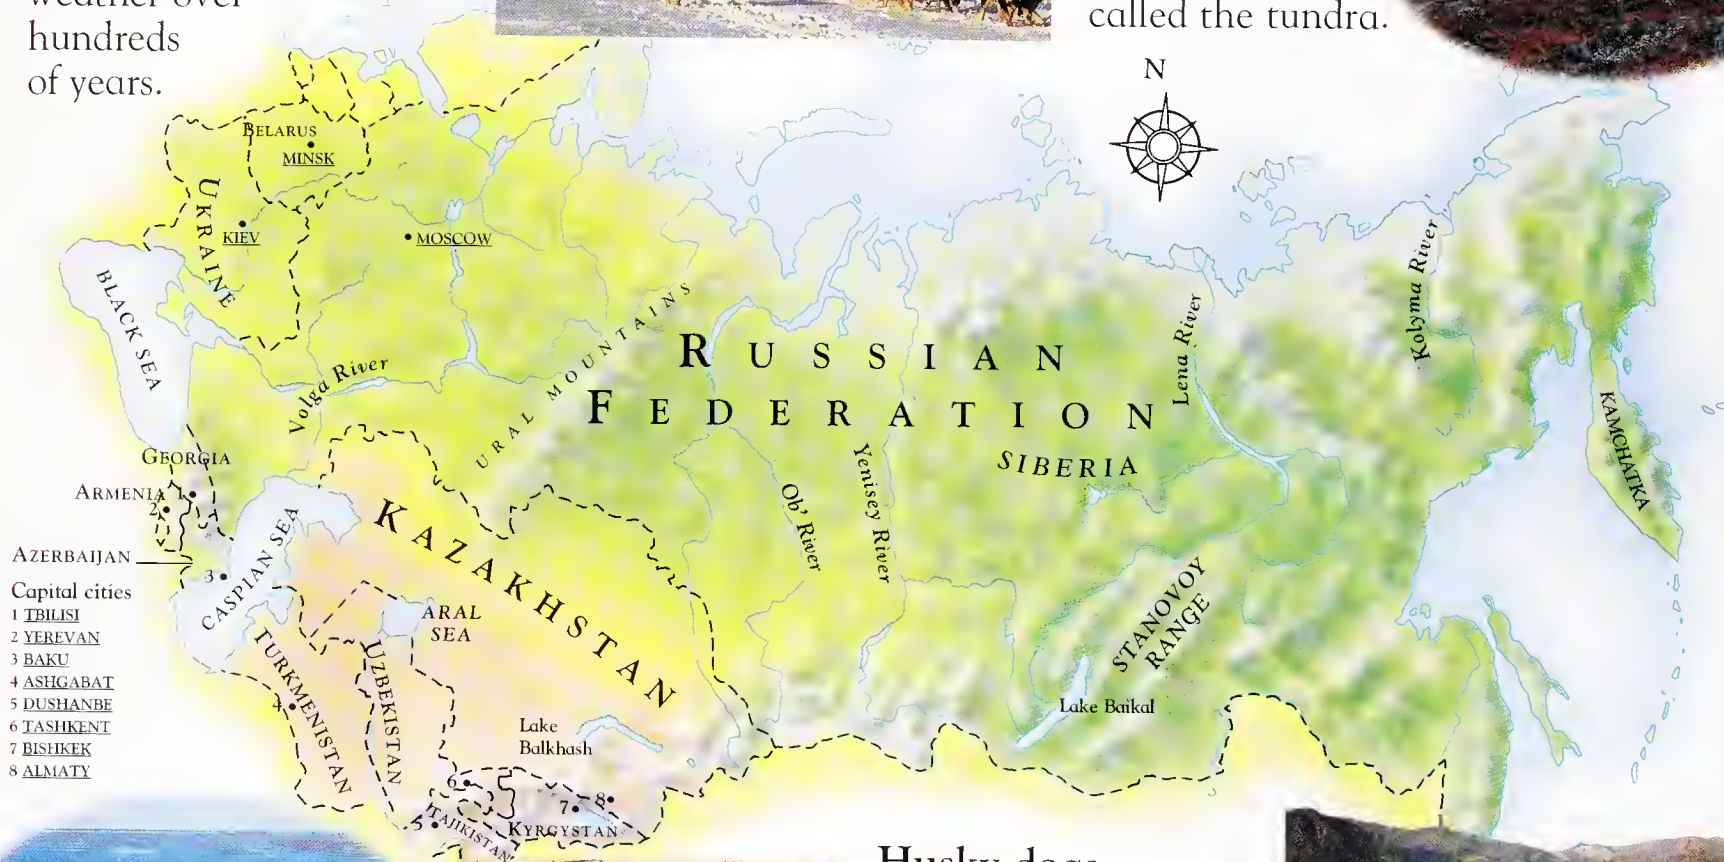

Ural Mountains

These mountains have been worn down by the weather over hundreds of years.

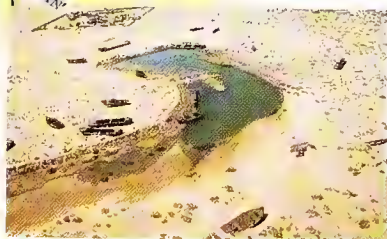

Tundra

Much of Siberia is a frozen, treeless plain called the tundra.

Volga River

The Volga River flows over 2,000 miles (3,500 km) into the Caspian Sea.

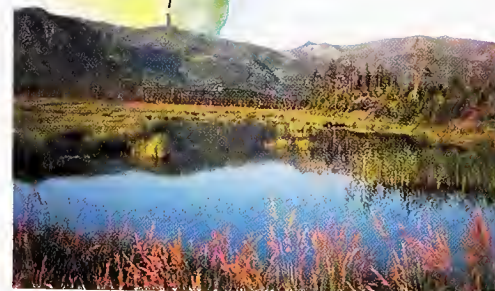

Aral Sea

This large saltwater lake lies in dry desert land.

Husky dogs

In Siberia, people use huskies to pull sleds across the snow.

Lake Baikal

Lake Baikal is fed by more than 300 rivers and is home to many rare animals.

