

Australasia

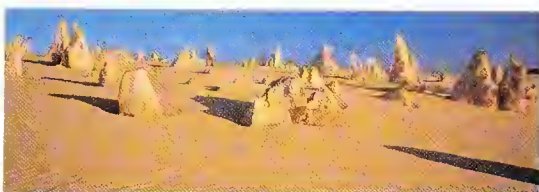

Australia and Papua New Guinea

From mountains and rain forests to deserts and coral reefs, Australasia has a varied landscape and unique wildlife.

Blue Mountains

The Blue Mountains run down the eastern coast of Australia.

Desert rocks

These strange desert rocks in western Australia are called the Pinnacles.

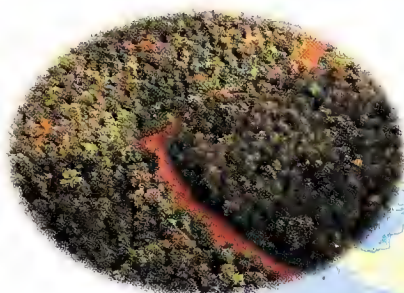

Outback

The middle of Australia is dry grassland known as the outback.

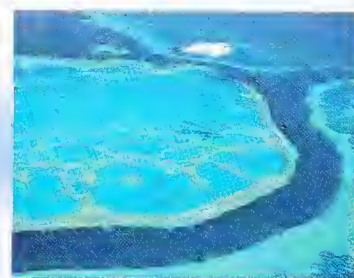

Uluru (Ayers Rock)

This huge rock in the desert is a sacred place for Aborigines, the first people of Australia.

Rain forest

Tropical rain forest covers over two-thirds of Papua New Guinea.

Great Barrier Reef

The Great Barrier Reef is a long line of reefs and islands. It is made of living coral.

Koala bear

Koalas live in eucalyptus woods in eastern Australia, feeding on the leaves of the trees.

Tasmania

Tasmania is a small island that lies south of Australia.

Tasmanian devil

This fierce animal has sharp teeth and a nasty snarl. It lives only in Tasmania.

