

Europe

Northern Europe

This cool, wet region has snowy mountains and pine forests in the north, and rolling hills in the south.

Pine forest

The tough northern pine forests survive the bitterly cold winters.

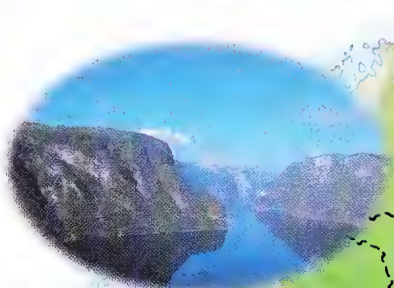

Hot springs

In Iceland, hot springs, called geysers, spurt out of the ground.

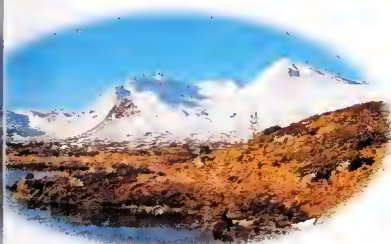

Fjord

Norway's fjords are deep inlets carved into the coastline by rivers of ice.

Cotswolds

The English landscape has many gently rolling hills, but no high mountains.

Scottish highlands

Scotland is a land of rugged mountains and beautiful lakes.

Rhododendron

This evergreen plant survives cold winters. It lives throughout northern Europe.

Did you know?

- In Iceland there is so much hot water under the ground that it is used to heat whole towns.
- There are more than 100,000 lakes in Sweden.

Midnight sun

In the far north, the midsummer sun never sets. There is daylight even at night!

Red squirrel

Red squirrels live in forests, feeding on nuts and seeds.
