

Incas

Inca toy

This pottery dog belonged to an Inca child.

The Incas were people who lived in South America more than 500 years ago. They ruled a great and wealthy empire.

Inca life

Gold was used to make precious goods, such as this llama ornament.

Music

was very popular. These panpipes made a soft sound.

Machu Picchu

The Incas were expert builders. This ancient city was built high up in the mountains of Peru.

Stone ruins of houses and temples

Flat terraces cut into the hillside.

Food grown on terraces.

Tools

Tools were made from wood, stone, bone, and wool.

Hoe for farming

Sling for hunting

Quinine for medicine

Plants

Plants were grown for food and medicine.

Potato

Corn

Snakeroot for stomach-ache

Llama

Llamas were used to carry goods up and down the mountains.

Spanish conquest

When Spanish soldiers arrived in South America, they stole Incan gold and sent it back to Spain.

Helmet

Gun

Spanish soldiers killed the Incan fighters quickly with their guns.

Religious ceremonies took place in special temples. Animals were often sacrificed.

Gods and goddesses were important, such as this statue of the goddess of farming.

Dead bodies were carefully preserved. The Incas believed in life after death.

Did you know?

The Incas did not use writing. They recorded things on knotted strings called quipus.

