

NORTH AMERICA

The world's third largest continent after Asia and Africa, North America contains the ice-covered island of Greenland to the north and the tropical Caribbean Islands to the south, as well as the mainland of North and Central America. The continent's wide-ranging landscape varies from frozen tundra in the north, through high mountain chains and flat, fertile plains, to hot, dry deserts, and lush rain forest in the south.

Well hello there.

The Rockies

The Rocky Mountains stretch down the west coast of North America, from Alaska in the north to New Mexico in the south. The snow-capped mountains are popular with skiers and mountaineers and home to an array of wildlife, including elk, moose, and grizzly bears.

Does anyone have a thimble?

Just trying to get my bearings.

BERING SEA

Alaska (to USA)

Mine's a rocky road.

Mackenzie

Yukon Territory

Hey, this is my patch!

Great Bear Lake

Nunavut

BEAUFORT SEA

ARCTIC OCEAN

What do you think?

It's a little patchy in places.

Shouldn't you be in a barrel?

The Great Plains

Between the Rocky Mountains to the west and the Missouri and Mississippi rivers to the east, lie the Great Plains or Prairies—the breadbasket of the continent. Crops including wheat, flax, and cotton are grown here, and the area supports vast herds of cattle and flocks of sheep.

I'm the fall guy.

So what?

Cool!

We're sewing!

Km 0 100 200 400 600
Miles 0 100 200 300 400 500 600

The Great Lakes

A series of five freshwater lakes that form the natural boundary between the U.S. and Canada, the Great Lakes are the largest body of fresh water in the world and include the immense Niagara Falls. The lakes are drained by the St. Lawrence River, which flows northeast into the Atlantic Ocean.

We need a quilt.

I'm cold.

This is great!

Nuuk, GREENLAND (to Denmark)

BAFFIN BAY

DAVIS STRAIT