

Play the name game

At this stage, naming everything you show your baby is helping him begin to develop the association between an object and the word we use to label it. As you name objects—even everyday items such as a sun hat or spoon—he’s taking in vital information to support his language development by looking at the shape of your mouth, your facial expression, and the sound of the word.

5 MONTH

“Cup”

