

Who's that baby?

Hang a large unbreakable mirror in front of your baby so she can sit and look into it—or sit her on your lap and hold the mirror in front of her. As she looks into the mirror at her own reflection, point to the different parts of her face and name them. She will be intrigued by what she sees, even though she won't recognize her own face yet.

Boomerang toy

Your baby's hand-eye coordination can benefit from looking up at moving objects and trying to grab them. Tie a lightweight soft toy to a length of strong elastic and bounce it up and down in front of her, adding "boing" noises as it boomerangs back to her. Let her track the toy with her eyes and try to grab and hold on to it to sustain her interest.
