

Tickly toes

Pour a layer of fine sand into a deep-sided tray or baking sheet and hold your baby over it so his feet are touching the sand tray. Trickle sand over his toes and let him move his feet around for lots of tactile stimulation.

Where, oh where...

Say this rhyme to help your baby begin to identify more parts of his body. Touch the different parts as you name them:

Where, oh where, are your little fingers?
Where, oh where, are your tiny toes?
Where, oh where, is your belly button?
Round and round it goes.

Where, oh where, are your two small ears?
And where, oh where, is your nose?
Where, oh where, is your belly button?
Round and round it goes.