

Mandarin Jell-O

Use some of this tasty, naturally sweet gelatin for your baby to play with (left), and save the rest for desserts; it will keep in the fridge for up to 48 hours if you cover it in non-PVC plastic wrap. Makes 6 baby portions.

ingredients

10½ oz (300 g) can mandarin oranges in fruit juice
¼ oz (8 g) or 1 heaping tsp unflavored gelatin
unsweetened orange juice

method

1 Drain the fruit from the can and reserve the juice. Transfer the fruit to a shallow dish.

2 Put 3 tablespoons of very hot, but not boiling, water in a small bowl and sprinkle the gelatin over it. Let stand for 5 minutes, then stir the mixture until the gelatin has completely dissolved.

3 Pour the reserved juice into a measuring cup and add the gelatin and enough orange juice to make 10 fl oz (300 ml). Pour the gelatin mixture into the dish of fruit and refrigerate until it is set.
