

Name familiar sounds

Help your baby to listen and become aware of the different sounds in her immediate environment. As you move around the house, name the sound you can hear, ask your baby if she can hear the noise, and point to the source as you name it. Indoor sounds can include running water from a faucet, the telephone ringing, footsteps on the sidewalk outside, a bus passing by, and the doorbell ringing. When you go outside, listen for the sounds of birds singing, airplanes and trains going by, children playing, dogs barking, and leaves on the trees rustling in the wind.
