

Have breakfast together today

7
MONTH

Breakfast is often the most rushed meal of the day and one that we tend to assume doesn't warrant spending time together. However, experts believe that it is important to eat meals with your baby, so try to find time to sit together at the start of the day and share a good breakfast. It will reinforce the message to her that mealtimes are social occasions.

Make some food that you can share to set you both up for the day—perhaps fruit and oats, which you soak overnight in the fridge first, French toast with fruit, biscuits with cream cheese and fruit, oatmeal with apricots (see right), or oatmeal with a few fresh or frozen raspberries stirred in. If you want the whole family to join in, plan to have breakfast together on weekends.
