

Make a natural wind chime

Being outside is wonderful for your baby because her senses will be stimulated by the different sounds, sights, and smells. Help her enjoy a new experience by making a natural wind chime and hanging it from the low branch of a tree. Stand beside it with your baby in your arms and watch how the wind rustles the chimes to produce a noise. Then show her how she can pat the chimes to create the sounds herself. You could also lie together under the tree and look up at the leaves on the branches rustling, and the wind chime swaying in the breeze, and talk about what you can see and hear.

Alternatively, you can show her how you can create rustling sounds with a pile of leaves using your hands, and watch how the leaves fall to the ground if you throw them into the air.
