

Mood enhancer

If you need to boost your mood, take a walk with your baby in a green space, whether it's an urban park or square, or out in the country. Although any form of exercise is a wonderful way to reach a natural "high," research shows that it takes only five minutes of "green exercise" to feel more upbeat.

Your baby will also enjoy being out in the fresh air watching the world go by from his stroller.

Wave bye-bye

To help your baby get used to the idea that things come and go, wave and say, "bye-bye" whenever someone leaves, a bus moves away, or you put a soft toy back in its box. After lots of repetition with your baby watching what you say and do, he should start to respond and copy you.
