

Create a water garden

If you don't have any outside space, make a water garden. Pour a little water into a shallow plastic bowl or dish. Float a few flower heads on the water—nasturtiums, pansies, or rose petals are all good choices (check first before you use other flowers, since some can be poisonous). You could also add a few fronds of kale to the water to look like aquatic plants. Float some plastic ducks on top and let your baby have fun splashing around trying to catch the floating ducks with her hands.

If you want to extend the game, add a few drops of natural food coloring to the water and describe to your baby how you can see the color spread through the water. Then add another color and watch how the look of the water changes.
