

Cruise control

If your baby has been crawling for a while, he may be wanting to spend more time on his feet and perhaps trying to walk, so help him learn how to cruise with confidence. Line up a couple of sturdy children's chairs and help him walk a few steps sideways as he holds on to each chair. Reassure him gently if he falls, and put a favorite toy on the farthest chair if he needs a little encouragement to walk.

Food faces

Keep mealtimes fun by serving your baby's food as a face before cutting it into bite-sized pieces—or help him make a face with the pieces. Try halved cherry tomatoes, coarsely grated cheese, cooked carrots, peas, and noodles, or a banana with halved strawberries and grapes and soaked raisins. Name the parts of the face as he eats them.
