

Roly-poly pictures

Find a large cylindrical container or tube and paste some brightly colored photos or pictures from magazines on the outside. Use images that are familiar to your baby, such as favorite animals, toys, and people. Cover the cylinder in a clear self-adhesive wrap. Help your baby roll it along the floor. When it comes to rest, point to a picture you can see, talk about it, and make all the appropriate noises.

Let's go fly a kite

Your baby is eager for new adventures outside. Expand her horizons and stimulate her senses by watching kites flying in the sky at the park or the beach on a windy day—or fly your own kite. Use a small children's kite and let her help you hold onto the kite strings from the safety of her stroller: make sure the kite strings are secure in your hands and then place your hands over hers (don't attach the string to her hand or to the stroller). She'll love to watch the brightly colored kite dancing in the sky.
