

Make a story time fort

Story time is probably a big feature of your baby's bedtime routine by now, but reading stories in the day is also a great way to wind down after a busy morning, or make the transition from an exciting activity to a quiet time. Why not make a story time fort by arranging a soft blanket and lots of cushions or pillows on the floor under the dining room table, or behind the sofa. Hang a couple of large sheets or blankets over the sides of the table, or over the back of the sofa, to create a tent shape, and anchor down the edges of the sheets with books or shoes. Snuggle up together on the cushions and use a flashlight to spotlight the pictures as you read stories to her.
