

Silly hats

Your baby is old enough to understand that you exist even if she can't see you or hear your voice, so she should be relaxed about you dressing up and pretending to be someone—or something—else. Put various household objects, such as a colander, cardboard box, open book, plastic bucket, and pair of shorts, on your head and make her laugh by making funny faces and asking in a silly voice if the hat looks good on you. Let her try on the safer objects.
