

Make a “baby napping” sign

If the doorbell rings frequently and disturbs your sleeping baby, make a sign on a piece of cardboard in indelible ink saying “Baby napping—please visit another time,” and stick it on the front door while she sleeps.

If you have a busy family home, make a similar sign to hang on the bedroom door to let the rest of the family know when she is sleeping or feeding.

Draw a simple face

Your baby likes looking at faces more than anything else. Draw a simple face in thick black felt-tip on a piece of white card stock and hold it about 12 in (30 cm) from her face. She'll be fascinated by the image.
