

Meet new friends

Young babies are intrigued by other children. If your baby has siblings or cousins, let them stroke her while she's in your arms. They may even enjoy a special role as your helper by passing you diaper wipes or a clean diaper, and talking to their baby sister while you change her. Or invite friends and their toddlers or young children over for some bonding time; your baby will be entertained by any child if they are playing nearby.

Visual stimulation

Your baby's eyesight is improving fast, and she can now see objects a little farther away, distinguish the colors red, green, and yellow, and focus on distinctive shapes. Choose a baby gym with brightly colored toys and let her enjoy lying beneath the dangling objects to try to focus on them.
