Face to face

Whether you use a baby carrier or sling, or convertible carriage-stroller; let your baby see your face often. Lift her up in her carrier, supporting her head if needed, so she can see your face, watch your expression, the movement of your mouth as you speak, and hear you easily, which is important for her own speech and language development. If your carriage is forward-facing, turn it around so she faces you every time you stop or park the carriage.

Instant entertainment

If you are going out and about for a while today, put a sealed ziplock bag of one or two toys—maybe a rattle, small soft toy, or squeeze toy—in your diaper bag. She's already attracted to movement and sounds, so use these toys to distract, occupy, or soothe her as needed.
