

Exercise outdoors

Take your baby to an outdoor instructor-led parents' exercise class, if one is available in a park near you. Typically, your baby enjoys the fresh air and scenery from her stroller or carriage while you exercise beside her. If there is an outdoor gym in your park you could work out there; try a stationary bike or cross trainer for some moderate, low-impact exercise, and make sure your baby can see you from her stroller. Or why not go for a walk or run with her. Whatever you choose, it would be a change of scene for both of you and should help you gradually get back into shape.
