

Introduce family traditions

Think about which family traditions you would like to establish. Whether it's a custom from your own family heritage or a new one you're making up for yourselves, these will become the fabric of your family life for many years. For example, some families buy their children a new decoration to hang on a Christmas tree every year, others might gather children to spin a Dreidel on Hanukkah or help cook for a Kwanzaa feast. You may want to establish family cuddle time for half an hour in bed on a weekend morning before getting up, going for a relaxed walk, or turning off the TV or radio on a

Sunday evening to play games outside in good weather or indoors when it's colder.
