

Footprint plaque

As a permanent reminder of your baby's early months, make a 3D impression of his feet (or hands). Use a plaster cast kit or buy extra-light, air-dry white clay from an art or craft store, or online, to create a keepsake for yourselves, or to give away as a gift to grandparents.

If you don't get a good set of imprints the first time, just reroll the clay and try again.

1

Roll out the clay to a thickness of $\frac{1}{4}$ in (5 mm) on a flat clean surface using a rolling pin. Use an upturned bowl and a knife to cut a circle.

2

Put the clay circle on a plate. Hold your baby over the plate and press his feet, one at a time, into the clay to get an even imprint of each sole and all his toes.
