MINS

The next time you have friends over, why not challenge them to a game of bird bingo? Set up the playing cards in advance, then go outside, watch for birds, and see who's the first to make a complete line.

What you need

- Pictures of bird behavior

First full line wins!

Write in each behavior

1 Make playing cards with nine squares on each card. Go online to find images of birds doing different things.

2 Print the pictures, cut them out, and glue one in each square. Use a different order for each card.

3 Write in each behavior below its matching picture, to make sure everyone knows what to look for.

4 Give each player a card and a pencil. Go outside and watch bird behavior. The winner is the first to cross off a line—or to check off the whole card.

Is it a leap year?

A year with 366 days in it is called a leap year. We need to add an extra day every four years to keep the calendar in check with the time it takes Earth to circle around the Sun. Leap years are associated with frogs so why not try one of the froggy activities in this book to mark the 366th day of the year, or have a game of leapfrog!
