

115 Play backyard concentration

20
MINS

Test your nature identification skills with this game of concentration. Match pairs of images and you'll improve your observational skills as you play. Take photos and make cards from your own pictures.

What you need

- Wildlife and plant images
- Posterboard for backing
- Glue

1 Find pictures of plants and animals you see in your yard. Print two copies of each and glue them to posterboard. You need at least 10–12 different species.

2 Shuffle, then lay the cards face down. Each player takes a turn, revealing two cards. If they are a pair, the player keeps them. If not, the cards are turned over. The player with the most pairs wins.

3 Alternatively, take the cards outside and deal them. The first person to spot and name everything on their cards wins.

Pigeons can remember faces and will avoid people who shoo them away!

116 Dissect an owl pellet

Piece of pellet

Mouse or vole skull

Tiny mammal bones

Break the pellet into two or three pieces, then soak them in water for an hour to soften. Use tweezers to tease them apart and find out what the owl has eaten.
