

Backstitch

Backstitch is a strong stitch that makes a continuous line. It looks like stitches made on a sewing machine.

Getting started

Make a knot in your thread and push the needle up through the fabric to the front side.

Make your first stitch

Push your needle through to the back, one stitch length ahead of where your needle came out.

Go backward

Bring the needle back to where the last stitch finished. Push the needle to the back to make the stitch.

Go forward

Bring the needle out one stitch length ahead of the last stitch.
