

Cities

Big cities are crammed full of places for people to live, work, and enjoy themselves. Buildings in the city center are often very tall and tightly packed together to save space.

Homes

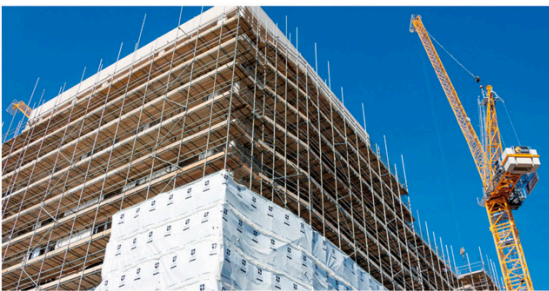

This building has lots of homes, which are called apartments. They are arranged on different floors. You reach them by stairs or elevators.

Factories

Factories make the things we use in our daily lives. They are often noisy places, since they are full of big machines.

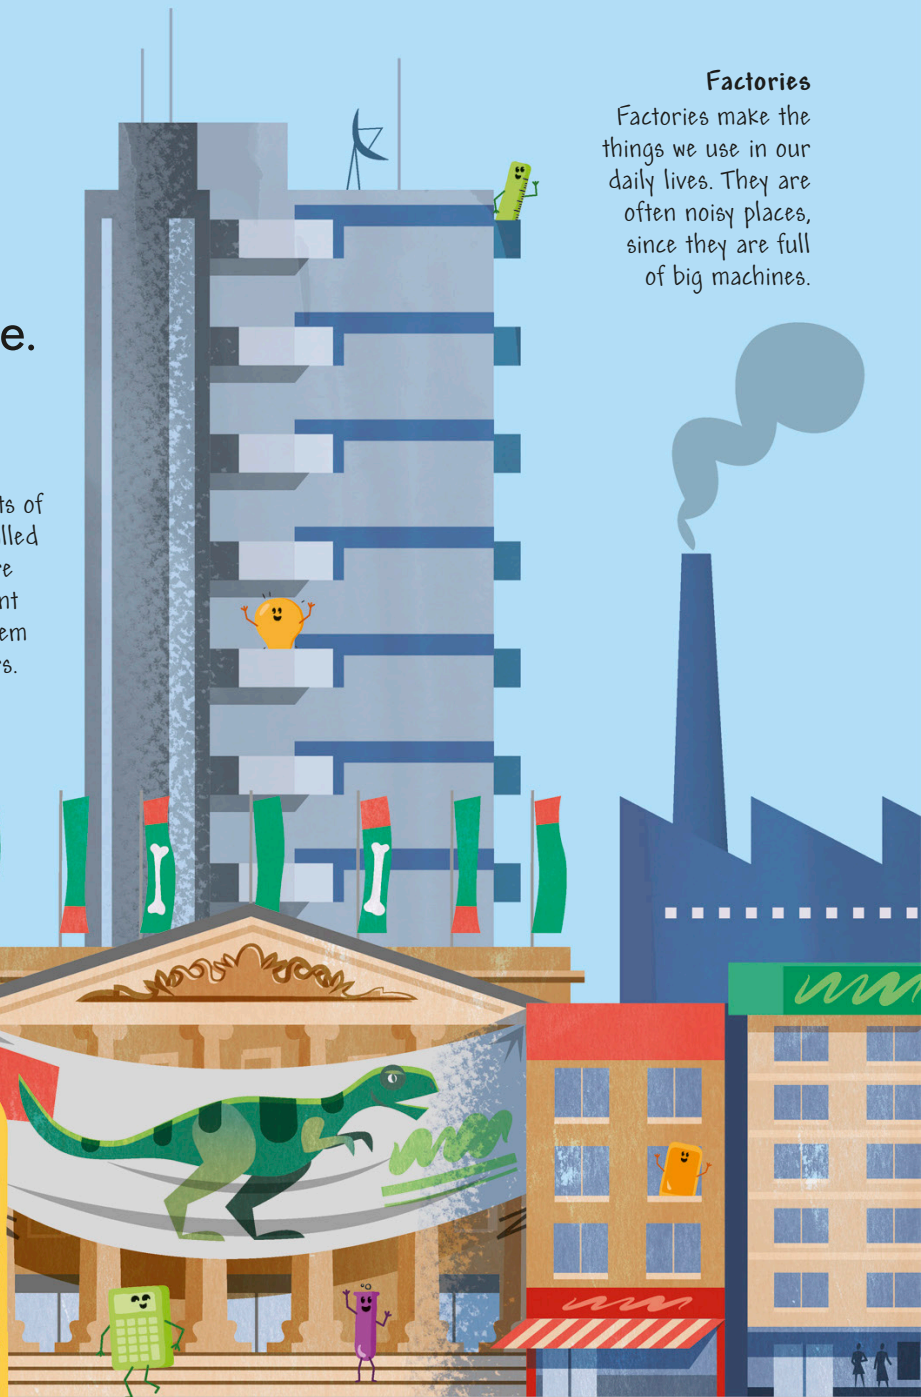

Construction

Workers stand on a frame with platforms, called scaffolding, while they build a new building.

Heavy lifter

Big cranes are needed to lift building materials to the top of the scaffolding.

Museums

In museums, people can see famous paintings, dinosaur fossils, scientific displays, and other important objects from history.

Stores and more

Some department stores are really huge and can be the size of an entire city block. There are also malls and plenty of smaller stores.
