

GIANT CLAM

The magnificent giant clam is the biggest mollusk on Earth, with a huge, furrowed shell that grows up to 4 ft (1.2 m) long. The shell is lined with colorful soft tissue that is full of food-making algae, just like the tissue of reef corals. The algae supply the clam with most of the nutrients it needs.