

Ancient wonders

Ancient Greek travelers and authors such as Herodotus, Antipater, and Philo of Byzantium praised the architectural marvels of the age in their writings. The buildings and statues they described became known as the “Seven Wonders of the World.” Today, we recognize many other amazing structures that architects, masons, and sculptors of the past built with relatively simple tools.

