

There are several ghost towns across the West, because many towns were abandoned when the gold ran out.

Ghost town

Would you visit a ghost town? Don't worry, it's not as scary as it sounds! Virginia City was founded in the 1800s when gold was discovered in the area. It was abandoned when the gold ran out, turning it into a "ghost town." Today, it has been resettled, and it has a population of 150 residents.

Skijoring

Skijoring is a Norwegian word that means "ski driving," and Montanans love it! This winter sport is when a person wearing skis is pulled by a dog, horse, or vehicle.

Glacier National Park in Montana

The grizzly bear is the state animal of Montana.