

Sacagawea

Sacagawea was a Shoshone woman born in Idaho. She acted as a translator and diplomat for the European travelers Lewis and Clark, who were journeying across the US. In 1805, she made the challenging 5,000-mile journey from North Dakota to the Pacific Ocean, traveling with Lewis and Clark and her baby son.

Lewis and Clark were trying to learn about the western half of the US.

Record-breaking Idaho

Idaho's awesome landscape breaks some pretty cool records. Hell's Canyon is deeper than Arizona's Grand Canyon and Shoshone Falls is taller than New York's Niagara Falls. Way to go, Idaho!
