

Noncontiguous States

Alaska and Hawaii are the only two “noncontiguous” US states. That means they don’t share a border with another US state. They’re also the last two states to join the nation. Alaska borders western Canada and has a frigid arctic climate. Tropical Hawaii is a group of islands in the Pacific Ocean.