

New Hampshire

The state mammal is the white-tailed deer.

New Hampshire is covered in thick forests and crawling with interesting animals like bobcats. It's part of the New England region, which is famous for its beautiful fall season, which leads into freezing, snowy winters.

Fall in New Hampshire

Fall foliage

From September to October, visitors flock to see the fall foliage in New Hampshire, where the leaves change to brilliant shades of red, orange, and yellow. The White Mountains and the Lakes are especially famous for this fiery display.

