

Abenaki fables

The Abenaki people are one of the largest Indigenous groups in the state. It is common for adults to share fables as a way of teaching life lessons. One story is about Azeban the raccoon, who challenges a waterfall to a yelling contest. He gets so angry at the waterfall he ends up falling in!

This fable teaches us not to be stubborn and proud.

State Facts

Abbreviation: NH

Capital: Concord

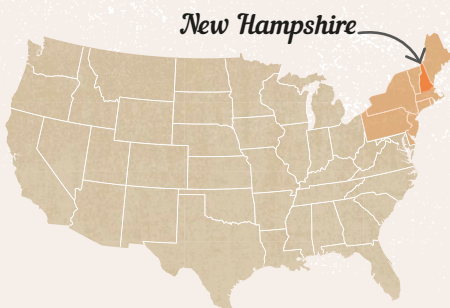

Nickname: The Granite State

Statehood: 1788, 9th state

Population: 1.4 million people

State flower: purple lilac

State bird: purple finch

Bobcats

Bobcats live throughout the many forests of New Hampshire. At only one year old, a bobcat leaves its mother to live on its own. Now that's growing up fast!

