The sky fills with bright, boldly colored hot air balloons every October at the Albuquerque International Balloon Fiesta. More than 500 amazing balloons take flight. What a sight to see!

Adobe buildings

New Mexico*

New Mexico's adobe buildings are a traditional architectural style used by Southwestern Pueblo peoples. Adobe is made by mixing earth, water, and other materials like straw that is made into bricks and also spread onto walls. Once the mixture dries in the sun, it hardens and becomes sturdy.
