The “Big Four” North American deserts—the Great Basin, Mojave, Sonoran, and Chihuahuan—lend a special beauty to Arizona. In the northwest corner of the state lies a natural wonder, the Grand Canyon. And not too far away is the famous Hoover Dam. Arizona was also home to civil rights activist Cesar Chavez.

The Grand Canyon

It's a jaw-dropping experience to see the Grand Canyon in person. This epic natural wonder was formed as the Colorado River cut through layers of earth over millions of years. It's an exciting place to explore, with amazing wildlife, incredible scenery, and plenty of adventures to try, including rafting and hiking.
