

Lake in the rift

Kenya's Lake Magadi is one of many lakes in East Africa's vast Great Rift Valley, formed as blocks of Earth's crust shift downward into the underlying mantle. The unusual colors come from minerals washed into the lake.