

Ancient life

South Australia's Kati Thanda-Lake Eyre shrinks and grows according to the continent's erratic rainfall. The pink color comes from pigment in the cell membranes of salt-loving bacteria, some of the oldest forms of life on Earth.