

LIVING AND WORKING

There is science all around us in our daily lives. Using scientific techniques and methods, we can grow more food and conserve and clean the water we drink. The modern world is also kept running by the many different ways of harnessing energy scientists have developed, from wind turbines to nuclear reactors.