

Icy base

The Halley VI Antarctic Research Station monitors the atmosphere in one of the harshest environments on Earth. The base can withstand temperatures as low as -67°F (-55°C) and has long legs to keep its modules above any snow.